

VILLA ARMY DOES NOT SHOW FIGHT

AMERICAN TROOPERS NEARING HIS PLACE OF RETREAT BUT NO REAL BATTLE EXPECTED TODAY.

SLIGHT HITCH OCCURS

Necessity to Use Mexican Railroads and Possible Refusal by Carranza May Hinder Advance Movements.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.] San Antonio, March 20.—Francisco Villa, on whose trail General Pershing's cavalry are riding, still declined Pinaton's reports told the manner in which the expeditionary forces are operating south of Casas Grandes, offered little reason for belief and even a little retreating bandits would occur today or even tomorrow.

Most reports indicated Villa was in the mountains in Guerrero district.

Many Scouts.

Ambuscades who have spent many years in that part of Mexico are being used as scouts and guides on the trails that lead to the south and east of Casas Grandes. The force actually in the chase of Villa was strengthened today by the arrival at Casas Grandes of detachments of the 1st, 2nd, 3rd and 4th field artillery and the aerial squadron.

It has been assumed at army headquarters that Carranza troops are being heavily in the task of running down Villa, but what the Mexican troops are doing is unknown by the Americans.

Mexicans "Friendly."

General Pershing reported today that the garrison at Casas Grandes was "friendly but passive." In the same report he said that the Mormon colonists there looked upon the Americans as their "freedom."

New estimates by General Pershing placed Villa's losses in killed, wounded and deserted since crossing the line since the attack on Columbus in 1915. Instructions from the army for not to occupy towns or cities met with no opposing comments at army headquarters.

Colonel Sibley reported that yesterday he talked with Colonel Rojas, commander of the garrison at Ojinaga, who was reported killed by his own men last week, and was assured conditions along that part of the line were good.

Villa's Trail.

El Paso, March 20.—Villa has doubled east and south to Naniquipa, according to a telegram received here by General Gaviara at Juarez. He reports that Carranza troops are advancing from the south, while the Americans are continuing their march from the north in an effort to close the net around the bandits.

Abandons Wounded.

After leaving El Valle, where he had abandoned thirty of his wounded, Villa turned direct toward the town of Miguel Alemán, where he was reported yesterday by General Gaviara, who reported that Carranza troops are advancing from the south, while the Americans are continuing their march from the north in an effort to close the net around the bandits.

Hard on Chase.

General Pershing knows nothing of American troops except they are in the chase, nor has he any details of the Carranza troops co-operating in the movement. Colonel Cano was at Villa at last reports, as his advance post came within sight, but not in conflict with Villa's fleeing rear guard at El Valle.

Wants Information.

Washington, March 20.—General Carranza today replied to the American government's request for use of Mexican railroad lines for movement of supplies to punitive expedition, "The request for more complete information of exactly what is intended by the expedition, General Carranza's reply was sent to President Wilson. The information he asks will be furnished."

Need Railroads.

El Paso, March 20.—The railroad problem is overshadowed everything in the Mexican situation today. The reply of Carranza to the request of the United States government for permission to use the railroads today was a refusal to make any such concession. The American troops while acquiescence would be bound to be maintained by a considerable force of Mexican troops and to be exploited by Carranza.

Unexpectedly rapid advance of the expeditionary columns under General Pershing has forced the railroad problem to an issue. Americans familiar with the situation here the columns are now, assert it is imperative the railroads be placed at the army's disposal for bringing up supplies.

Dr. J. Bush, formerly chief surgeon of Carranza's army, asserted today that speedy transportation facilities were essential to further progress by the American soldiers.

Are at Galeana.

"The American forces are reported to be south of El Valle, and from that point the only practicable route of bringing up supplies is by a narrow deep gorge, in which about 2,000 people live. The territory in which Villa probably will remain is an imaginary line of the Chihuahuas and Miacas, with Mexican and Carranza troops on one side and the Americans on the other. His Americans, in that they will travel in light, with only a few days' provisions and are seasoned men, well able to stand the hardships of mountain campaigning in that climate."

Dr. Bush said that he had no doubt that Villa was spreading stories of his wonderful victories over Americans, Carranza had gone over to the United States. It would be easy, he said, for him to make the ignorant people believe the wildest stories.

Must Open Mines.

Another serious situation has been caused by the demand on General Carranza, military governor of Sonora, to open the Colorado Mining company.

UNITED STATES TROOPS ALONG THE MEXICAN BOUNDARY USE FIELD TELEPHONE TO KEEP IN TOUCH WITH HEADQUARTERS

Troops along Mexican border using field telephone, keeping in touch with headquarters. American troops along the Mexican border are keeping themselves in instant readiness for any eventuality. The field telephone, which keeps them in constant touch with headquarters, is proving of invaluable assistance.

Many open their mine at Hermosillo at once. He has wired the company that if the mine is not opened immediately, he will take it over and run it.

Carranza's Protest.

Washington, March 20.—General Carranza has formally protested against American troops occupying Casas Grandes in their pursuit of Villa. He has replied that the American government has ordered specifically not to occupy Casas Grandes or any other towns or cities in Mexico.

More Troops Ready.

Columbus, March 20.—Increased activity on the part of the troops stationed here, and arrival during the night of a number of troops and supply trains, indicated today that additional forces shortly will be on their way to augment the punitive American expeditionary forces now in the field of northern Mexico.

In addition to the troops which detained here, many passed on through apparently bound for points westward along the border. Soldiers were busy today preparing fever and hospital trains, and carrying equipment to the field force.

Motor Trucks Ready.

The large motor trucks, the equipment of which has occupied military and civilian mechanics for two days, were ready for service today. The additional hospital and signal units were said to be ready for field service. Instructions have been issued that not only communication sent out by newspaper correspondents must be censored, but also those of officers and men of the army, and residents of Columbus must be passed upon. All incoming telegraph messages also are censored.

Every preparation is being made to care speedily for the injured. Every soldier in the expedition has been vaccinated against small-pox, and given the army prophylaxis treatment to prevent typhoid fever. Attention to sanitation is also being given by army medical forces to prevent typhus.

One French aeroplaner rammed a German machine, which fell in flames. Five German aeroplanes and three French craft fell, the occupants of all being killed. Even while the allied aeroplanes were fighting, they dropped a number of bombs upon military positions.

The allied air raid on Mulhausen was reported in yesterday afternoon's French official statement.

VON BISSING GIVES REPLY TO MERCIER

GERMAN GOVERNOR OF BELGIUM PROTESTS AT POLITICAL STATEMENT OF CATHOLIC PRELATE.

REGARDS RECENT NOTE

Cardinal Some Time Ago Issued Latin Pastoral Which Germans Regard as Offensive.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.] London, March 20.—Governor General Von Bissing, according to a Brussels telegram, has addressed a letter to Cardinal Mercier regarding the latter's Latin pastoral of which allusion has already been made in dispatches, says Reuter's Amsterdam correspondent. The German general's letter follows:

"There can of course be no doubt I never prevent your eminence from coming to your flocks, whatever the Holy Father wishes them to know through this, but besides this your eminence in pastoral letters indulges in political statements against which I decidedly protest."

"It is quite inexcusable that your eminence should raise unjustified hope regarding the issue of the war. Thus, for instance, your eminence has mentioned in accurate utterances of persons who are not in touch with the event, and who certainly cannot be called experts."

"You speak of the possibility such as you desire could be expected by the spreading of diseases. By such artful means you cause among a credulous population a nervous excitement and induce them to oppose the administration work of those who are in occupation of the country. Especially inadmissible in the pastoral is a hint at means of the religious liberty of the people of the occupied territory. Your eminence knows best how completely unjustified is this suspicion."

"In these circumstances I shall henceforth strictly proscribed any political activity and any stirring up of hostile sentiment against the authority of the occupying power which authority is legitimate, according to international law."

"If hitherto I submitted offenses to the clergy to your eminence for punishment, I must now resist from this procedure, with a view to your eminence set an example of insubordination and therefore, no success can be expected from your intervention."

"Your eminence will once more reply that I misunderstand the passages of the pastoral letter. As such a controversy is wholly fruitless, I have no intention to reopen it. Moreover, I am firmly resolved to more to allow our eminence to abuse such office by political agitation, for which ordinary citizens will be called to account. Your eminence to desist from political activity."

HALF MILLION CANS IRISH STEW SOLD

Eau Claire Firm Obtains Immense Contract to Furnish Canned Rations for Soldiers.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.] Eau Claire, March 20.—A local canning factory has landed an immense contract with the Canadian government for supplying Irish stew for soldiers in Halifax, and it is presumed it will find its way to the allies.

It is planned to have the local plant turn out 60,000 cans of Irish stew a week, for which the contract calls, said contract to run for a year. This will mean a great deal for the company, which for the past fifteen years has been supplying the army with a few weeks each year during the corn and pumpkin canning season. The stew is calculated to constitute complete rations for the soldiers in the field.

SENATOR HUSTING DISLIKES NATIONAL WATER POWER BILL

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.] Madison, Wis., March 20.—"The Shields water power bill, which has just passed the United States senate by a vote of 48 to 29, contains substantially nothing that I should consider if the object is to protect the public rights and interests in our navigable waters," declares Senator Paul O. "Conservatively stated, the bill contains everything to facilitate and expedite the building of such public works, and interests by private persons for private use and private property. The bill now goes to the house for its consideration and unless it is defeated there or vitally altered, or unless it is vetoed by the president, if passed, the country will have lost its greatest and most navigable resource forever."

The Earliest Maps.

It was among the Egyptians that the first maps appeared. They were wooden tablets on which land and sea, roads and rivers, were fairly accurately outlined. The evidence of such maps is not only furnished in the old Egyptian papyrus rolls, but some of the actual maps have been discovered. The express was approaching a railway bridge that spanned a deep river, and a stout old lady in one of the compartments showed signs of nervousness. As the train went roaring across the structure she did not speak a word, but seemed to be holding her breath. "There," said a gentleman in a neighboring seat, "we are over it safely." The old lady heaved an explosive sigh. "Well," she said, "if we had gone to the bottom I should have died with a clear conscience, for it wouldn't have been my weight that did it. I bore up so that I really made the train lighter than it would have been without me!"—Pittsburgh Press.

ST. PATRICK'S CHURCH MEN'S MISSION OPENS

WEEK'S RETREAT STARTS YESTERDAY—FIRST EVENING SERVICES FILLS EDI-FICE WITH HUM-DREDS.

FATHER CONROY TALKS

In Strong Sermon Passionist Father Shows Essential Need of Preparing Now for Death.

"That man is a fool and a great fool who lives in a life of sin and in the delusion that in the future he can give his soul to God and secure for himself those heavenly promises made by the Redeemer who died on the cross on Calvary's heights."

Thus spoke the Rev. Father Ignatius Conroy, C. P. companion to the Rev. Father Matthew Miller of the Passionist Fathers' order, who are conducting missions at St. Patrick's church, last evening. The occasion was the opening of the evening services of the retreat for men and boys of the congregation. The mission will continue through next Sunday with the celebration of masses at 5 and 8 o'clock each morning and a sermon, instructions and benediction at 7:30 o'clock each evening. A short instruction is also given each morning at the close of the early mass. This is finished by 5:30 o'clock, to permit working men to return to their homes for breakfast and to work by 7:00 o'clock.

Twelve hundred and fifty men were in attendance at the first of the evening meetings Sunday evening. Every seat in the edifice was filled at the hour of opening it was necessary to mass a large number in the rear of the church.

Rev. Conroy's sermon was a treatise of the immediate necessity of leaving the life of sin for that of purity of heart and meekness in the sight of God. He is a forceful speaker, displaying great oratorical powers and with a voice which mingles pathos, love and anger and wrath as the occasion calls. Illustrating his more important points with stories and occasions from life, he captivates his audience and holds their strictest attention throughout his sermons.

Last night the Rev. Conroy utterly discouraged that type of man who enjoys and seeks the pleasures of the world, meanwhile forgetting his God and who looks to the future for his reformation and unification with God on his deathbed. "There are but two instances that we are sure of," he said. "The first is the present and the second is the instant of our death. These will never fail."

"It is sheer foolishness to labor under that idea that we can go along now without a single thought of God and later, as we wither away, once again come into His grace. Too many men of the world today lose their souls in this way. This is the blindfold the evil satan attempts to wind about the spiritual eyes of every man and woman, knowing the while that he can only keep their souls in sin his soul killing influences can bring in their work only the more easy."

"Familiarity breeds contempt. How well the prince of debauchery knows this. First a step down from his victim, then a little farther and then on and on until man has lost all respect for God, is fearful of his own life and lives in a constant dread. He has been lost, and only strength of character and will power and the grace of God can bring him back to his God."

and from the path that leads to darkness everlasting after death.

"Throughout the world eighty thousand men die daily. I dare say the great majority of these die condemned to everlasting fire. And for why? Simply because they left themselves to return to the grace of God in the future when there was no future for them. They went on ever unmindful of the approach of death and planning to accept the faith and leave aside their lives of sin, later. But later never came for them. They were cursed into everlasting fire are their decision to lead the better life arrived."

"Three things are necessary to turn from a life of sin to that of one of readiness to meet our Maker. They are the will, the time and the grace of God. We may all have intentions, but have we the will and strength? Now is the time. We know not the day nor the hour. The life of sin is but the grace of God. And it is His grace that is most essential for our salvation and life of eternal happiness after death."

A vivid illustration and a personal experience brought out clearly the necessity of the grace of God for reformation. Father Conroy has been in mission work for the past year and it was while he was conducting a retreat similar to the one here that the instance occurred.

A man who lived in the town. He had not lived up to nor had he respected the early training and the religion of his youth. He was getting older and feebler but was ever obstinate and determined not to come back. "I have a couple more years yet to live and I'm not ready yet," he repeatedly told the parish priest. Father Conroy also visited him, but of no avail.

On the Thursday night of the mission the parish priest was called away from town. Early Friday morning a call to the paragonage said the man was dying. Father Conroy hurried to the home. In the yard was a daughter, frantic, tearing her hair and screaming, "My God, father, hurry! He is dying!"

Of went into the house and into the old man's chamber, related the priest. "There he was on his death bed, his snowy white hair covering the pillow and a long white beard was trailing over his chest. He gave one wild stare at me and died, hurried with the conditional preparation for death, but I am afraid it was too late."

The mission which was held throughout last week for the women of the congregation closed yesterday afternoon. It was the most successful of the kind held in the history of the church. Nightly between hundreds of women were in attendance. A large number of these were of Protestant belief. There were many Protestant gentlemen present last evening. Dean Reilly and the Passionist Fathers extended to them an invitation to attend the services throughout this week.

SONG RECITAL AT THE LIBRARY HALL

Maude De Voe Assisted By Miss Severance and Miss Claudia McPheeters to Render Delightful Program.

On Tuesday evening, March 21st, Maude De Voe, a coloratura soprano of prominence, assisted by Miss Helen Severance, a violinist and member of the famous Milwaukee Severance family, and Miss Claudia McPheeters, an accompanist, will give a most delightful concert at Library Hall.

Miss De Voe is a pupil of the noted teacher and former Grand opera singer, Herman Devries, Chicago. Prior to taking vocal instructions with the famous teacher she studied at Downer college, from which institution she graduated with the highest honors.

The press of Milwaukee, where she has appeared this winter, was lavish in praise of the talent of Miss De Voe. She has a remarkable voice whose tones are clear and limpid while the attack is absolute perfect. The finish and distinction of her art and the intelligence and fine taste of the singer were shown in the delivery of every number.

Miss De Voe recently appeared in a concert program with Arthur Shattuck at Waukesha and received more than a little attention from the musical critics, who attended the concert. The accompanist, Miss McPheeters has for many years been connected with the musical department of Downer College, Milwaukee, and has many friends in this city.

INCREASE IN PRICE OF STREET OILING

Added Cost of Oil Causes Cent Increase for Oiling Per Running Foot.

After obtaining a detailed report of the total cost of oiling the streets last year, Mayor James A. Fellers, as Councilman P. J. Goodman announced this morning that the cost of oiling will necessarily be six cents a running foot because of the marked increase of cost of the oil. This is a 50 per cent increase over the price of past years as the purchase price of the oil has increased over two cents a gallon.

The contract for the oil will probably go to the Indian company, as this company offered a new contract under which the city obtains oil at five cents a gallon at the present market price. The agreement offered is that the price be regulated by the market with a guarantee that the price never go above five and a half cents. The market has shown a decided advance before the city is effected and there were no other acceptable bids that were below the five and a half cent mark. The council expects to meet this afternoon and sign the contract for the oil. It is planned to purchase a car or two of the pure Mexican oil during the summer, as this oil is one of the best on the market, being almost a pure asphalt. The fact that most of the oil is purchased from New Orleans could not be obtained kept the council from giving the plastic company, who refine this oil, further consideration than the purchase of a few cars.

Homelessness Explained.

Mr. Fitzgibbon was asked the other day how he could account for nature's forming him so ugly.

"I hope you were not cross to her. Husbands and wives should never quarrel, you know."

"Oh, we didn't fight. Bessie was our maid, and she quit without giving us notice."—Milwaukee Journal.

FRANCE MUST KEEP PEACE IN MOROCCO

Trouble With Morocco Where France Gets Revenue and Soldiers Would Be Serious Now.

Paris, March 20.—"A job of public work is worth a battalion of soldiers in keeping the peace in Morocco," said General Lyautey, governor-general of Morocco, to a correspondent of The Associated Press, explaining how order has been maintained in the protectorate since the beginning of the war while, at the same time, the governor-general has sent 40,000 troops from the Moroccan forces, including 15,000 natives, to fight in France.

"At the beginning," said General Lyautey, "we had to consider two questions—to maintain French suzerainty in the protectorate and to keep France with the maximum of military aid. The two considerations appeared to be contradictory because of the situation still rife among certain tribes, but the diminution of the occupation force was offset in part by the territorialists brought from France who, though not so apt as seasoned troops for colonial service, have acquitted themselves admirably."

"A further and even more effective compensation for the reduction of our force was the development of public works, the construction of railroads."

He Uses the Safe and Sure Thing at Home

P. A. Efrid, Condo, Calif., writes as follows:—"I have sold Foley's Honey and Tar Compound and also other lines of cough medicines for a number of years, but never use anything but Foley's Honey and Tar Compound for my family or myself, as I have found it gives the best results, always cures severe colds and sore throat and does not contain opiates or other harmful drugs."

"Unthinking and careless people neglect their coughs and colds, not realizing how they weaken the system and lower the vital resistance to such grave diseases as bronchitis, pleurisy and even pneumonia."

"For promptly averting serious results from a cold, use Foley's Honey and Tar Compound. It spreads a healing soothing influence over raw inflamed surfaces, eases tightness and soreness of chest, helps cough, whooping cough, stuffy wheezy breathing, croup and in gripe coughs."

and the completion of high roads already planned with native labor. When the Moor is occupied earning money, he does not think of his gun, a job of public work is worth a battalion of troops, but to further develop those public works money is necessary—that is why I am now in France to ask Parliament to authorize an addition of 72,000,000 francs to the loan of 1914. The proceeds are to be applied to different public enterprises, such as irrigation, sewers, hospitals, schools, and telegraph and telephone lines.

"Morocco has not only furnished an army corps to the field forces in France, but has supplied several hundred thousand bushels of barley, oats and wheat to the French army, and for the relief of Montenegro; after the war the country will become one of the great granaries of Europe. It now raises only sufficient live-stock for the provisioning of the country in fresh meat, but it exports wool, hides, and eggs also in great quantities."

"There have been many speculations on the mineral resources of Morocco, but no one knows what they are. It is possible there are considerable deposits of phosphate and some valuable minerals which await only proper time for their exploitation."

General Lyautey was chosen to govern Morocco because of the valuable services he had rendered in colonization in collaboration with the present Minister of War, General Gallieni, in the colonies of Tonkin and Madagascar, and more particularly in his administration of the district of South Oran in Algeria. His policy is close, confidential, loyal collaboration with the natives from a political, as well as from a material and administrative point of view, involving absolute respect for the religious, national and social customs of the natives.

"The protectorate is now self-sustaining," said General Lyautey. "That is to say, the receipts of the government are equal to the appropriations for current expenses which for the ensuing fiscal year will amount to the equivalent of 10,000,000 dollars approximately."

"The loan we are asking for is for extraordinary expenditures for permanent public works that the future prosperity of Morocco should pay for, such as the development of the Port of Casablanca, already well advanced, and the extension of interior "high roads" indispensable to the development of the agricultural resources of the country."

Dinner Stories

"Tell me," said the solicitor for the prosecution, "were you present at the inception of the altercation?"

I was right there when the fight started."

"I saw Binks in church this morning. It's the first time he's been there in years."

"Where do you suppose he's been spending his Sunday mornings?"

"You can draw your own conclusions. He entered the church by the side door."

Mr. Jones had recently become the father of twins. The minister stopped him in the street to congratulate him.

"Well, Jones," he said, "I hear that the Lord has smiled on you."

"Smiled on me?" repeated Jones. "He laughed out loud."

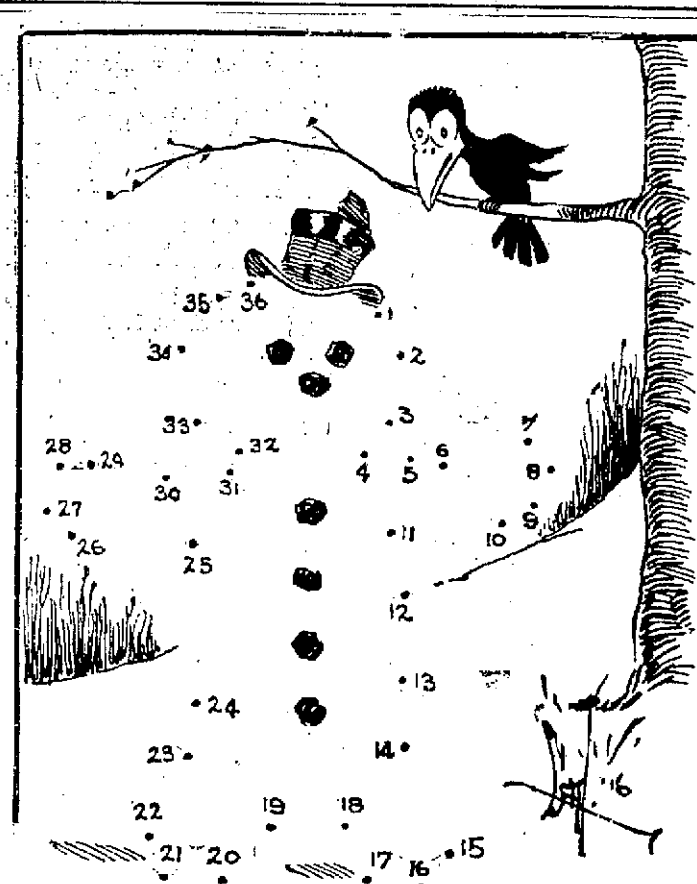

A servant girl who had been admonished by her mistress to be very careful in "washing up" the best tea things, was overheard shortly afterward indulging in the following soliloquy while in the act of wiping the sugar basin:

"If I was to drop this here basin and was to catch it, I suppose I shouldn't catch it; but if I was to drop it and wasn't to catch it, I reckon I should just catch it."

Whitewater News

NORMAL STUDENT IS HELD FOR DAY TIME BURGLARY

Whitewater, March 20.—A robbery occurred here Sunday afternoon about five o'clock which has caused quite a bit of excitement. When Elmer Fish unlocked the front door of his grocery store and entered he heard a noise and noticed some one leaving in a hurry by the back way. On investigation he discovered the safe open and $30 missing. He gave the alarm and chase was given. An auto was brought into the game and the robber was found in Frank Reider's garage. He was taken to the police station and so far no action has been taken. Harry Tilden, who is about 19 years of age and lives here with his mother and attends the normal school is the guilty party. He entered the store from the rear, having to go through the novelty barn and work in plain sight if anyone happened to be in the barn. It was necessary to break in two doors before getting into the store.

No explanation has been given for the action. Quite a number of the business places have been broken into this past winter but no large amount of money has been missed. All of these robberies have occurred early Sunday evenings.

A series of three basketball games has been arranged to be played between the Normal team and Company C for the championship of the city. The first game was played Saturday evening at the armory and the Company C were defeated 23 to 16. It was a fast hard game but some of the company men lacked practice.

The last of a week's series of Lenten meetings was held Sunday evening at the Congregational church. The meetings have been very helpful and last evening a large audience listened to a most excellent sermon by Rev. Rowell on Faith. The music was furnished by a large chorus choir of the Congregational church, also a duet by Mrs. L. R. Howard and Mrs. Earl Cox.

Miss Gladys Munn spent the week end with her parents at Fort Atkinson.

Mrs. Lillie Perry of Fort Atkinson and Miss Anna Taft of Evansville spent Sunday at the home of their father, S. L. Taft. Miss Taft had been visiting Mrs. Perry at the Fort since Friday night.

A miscellaneous shower was given Friday evening by Miss Ila Bayer at the Bayer home on Cottage street, for Miss Nellie Coombe, who is to be married next month to Mr. Claire Benson of Cambridge. Saturday evening, Mrs. Henry Coombe gave a six o'clock dinner to a dozen girl friends of Miss Coombe.

Ed. Malone visited in Madison Saturday and Sunday.

R. Carpenter is at Fort Atkinson visiting Mrs. Norman Haske and family.

Mrs. Eric Johnson and Miss Florence Austin were in Milwaukee Saturday and Sunday to attend the wedding of Miss Florence Hackett.

NEW PLAYERS ARE OUT FOR NOTRE DAME BASEBALL TEAM TO MAKE A WINNER.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

South Bend, Ind., March 20.—Coach Harper, in an effort to give Notre Dame another brilliant baseball team, is swinging the 34 veteran members of the squad to new positions. Shortstop Myers this year will be on first base; Wolfe will go to short, Kline to third and Spaulding to second. The latter was unable to play last season because of the freshman rule. Rydzewski, the football tackle, has joined the squad and will work in the outfield.

POLITICAL ANNOUNCEMENT

WRITTEN AND PUBLICATION AUTHORIZED BY W. W. HYZER AND TO BE PAID FOR BY HIM AT THE RATE OF 30c PER INCH.

GO TO THE POLLS TOMORROW AND VOTE FOR THE RIGHT MAN. BUT BE SURE TO VOTE

VOTE TOMORROW and consider your vote as you would were the selection of a Councilman your own private affair, for you alone to decide. But above all vote. It is the privilege of the American citizen to find fault with his government and honest criticism is good for any government. However, the voter who neglects to register his will at the polls should be estopped from fault finding with conditions which he neglects to strive to correct.

VOTE FOR YOUR CHOICE and remember that your decision will more vitally affect your pocketbook than the European war, or the result of the Presidential election.

The Councilman elected will hold office for six years, he is your salaried man, he is an employee of yours and unlike other employees, the machinery for his discharge is complicated and difficult of execution.

It is common talk that competent men cannot be selected for office. You have the opportunity to prove this assertion to be wrong, consider the city's business and do your part to put city affairs on a business basis. The efficiency we read about is nothing more than the selection of the right man for the job.

The wisdom of the voters' choice on this occasion will have its effect in future elections.

Is it not a fact that the difficulty of election often deters capable and efficient men from offering themselves as candidates? It is true that once the voters demonstrate their ability to judge of the merits of the candidates better and abler men will come forward to offer their services in the future.

Select your candidate as you would employ a man for your own service.

WILLIAM W. HYZER

Mr. Hyzer has demonstrated his ability to handle the Water Plant, which is one of the city's most important departments and which it has fallen to the Councilman whose term expires this spring to take care of. The efficiency of Mr. Hyzer's organization is shown by the success of this department in the city's hands when without any change in its method of operation it has gone on without a head and brought a considerable income to the city.

Regardless of the Water department you want in your employ at the City Hall a business man trained and experienced in the hard knocks of life, trained by what we call drudgery, one whose daily experience has been that of tasks done thoroughly and efficiently. Mr. Hyzer is that sort of man, he believes in preparedness, he is ready when the emergency arises and he can meet it with his coat off. There is no department of the city in which his experience will not be helpful, he is familiar with the office work of large corporations, is a trained and careful buyer of materials, knows prices and the tricks of the salesmen who handle the selling to cities and large corporations. Mr. Hyzer has been very successful with his employees. He can be as successful in handling yours. He can dig ditches. He can lay water pipes. He can build streets. He is a practical mechanic and can save you money at every turn. He has spent his life in this city, was born on Center street and knows the condition of the workers of Janesville and is in sympathy with their needs and their viewpoint.

Mr. Hyzer is not a reformer. His ideas are those of the average man. He believes in decency and good order. He has no fads to promote nor interests to serve and will give the city, and the city only, his best efforts. He will never be a rubber stamp, nor a reflection of another man's opinion, but will always be wherever he is placed. A MAN, independent and conservative.

It is your time and your opportunity to vindicate our belief in democracy, to nominate the best man at hand for the city's service.

VOTE FOR WILLIAM W. HYZER
—THE MAN FOR THE JOB.

UNBIASED COMMENT ON MR. HYZER'S ABILITY:
"PRACTICALLY ALL THE ACTIVE WORK AND MANAGEMENT IS IN THE HANDS OF THE SUPERINTENDENT BY WHOM IT APPEARS TO BE VERY EFFICIENTLY CARRIED ON." 7 WIS. R. R. COMMISSION REPORTS. PAGE 446.

HAS BORNE FRUIT.

The Mexican situation has come home to roost in the lofts of the democratic administration in a manner that is not pleasing to the average adherent of democratic principles. President Wilson's "watchful waiting" has at last borne fruit. For the first time in nearly a hundred years a foreign enemy has had the impudence to invade the United States, murder its citizens and shoot its soldiers. This is what occurred at Columbus, New Mexico, when Villa and his followers invaded that territory and this is the fruit of Mr. Wilson's "watchful waiting," the result of which has been foretold by everyone familiar with Mexican conditions and the shiftless, inconsistent and obstinate policy of this administration. It is just what some, at least, of Mr. Wilson's own advisers, including Secretary Garrison, have repeatedly warned him
would happen. Mr. Wilson, firmly convinced that President Wilson was "too proud to fight," and that the American people were too cowardly to avenge the most flagrant outrages on their own citizens, and counting on the lack of preparedness which this administration had so assiduously fostered, actually invaded American territory and took American lives. That Villa counted on the unprepared condition of the unprepared army of the United States is dandy proof by his escape and the length of time it required to organize a force sufficient to follow him.
Meanwhile every hour's delay made the situation more serious and increased the danger of war—a general intervention. The ablest officers in the army have long urged upon the president, through Secretary Garrison, the importance of keeping the army along the Mexican boundary supplied with every requisite for a quick dash into Mexico. They have believed the time must inevitably come when such a step would be necessary, and they have insisted that if it did arrive the army should be in condition to strike instantly, to pursue those responsible for such outrages without hesitation, to punish them and then withdraw before all of the Mexican people became inflamed with resentment and fear of general intervention. But these warnings have fallen on deaf ears. Officers at the front have been told that "under no circumstances" would they be permitted to cross the Mexican border,
and that their urgent recommendations that they be supplied with automobile transports, kept supplied with rations for an emergency expedition, etc., were foolish, because there never would be any invasion of Mexican territory. Even the brief pursuit of Villa and his force was ordered by a subordinate officer, General Pershing,
in violation of President Wilson's explicit orders and at a time when Mr.
Wilson was "instituting negotiations"
with a view to securing Carranza's permission to follow Villa.

SUGAR BEET SEED.

The mere threat of free sugar sufficed to demoralize the beet sugar industry, erstwhile so flourishing in Wisconsin, and not yet wholly wiped out, in spite of democratic endeavors to that end. Sugar has not cheapened, in spite of the lost millions of revenue, so that even so ardent a free trader as the president is fain to have the duty retained instead of taking the final plunge to free sugar. Under these altered circumstances the Wisconsin beet sugar industry, almost done to death, begins to revive," says
the Milwaukee Free Press.
"Plans are afoot to open closed plants and continue the making of beet sugar as of yore. The sole obstacle to this advantageous program is the scarcity of sugar beet seed. The seed used is grown in Germany and Russia, and the question is whether a sufficient supply can be obtained before planting time. Unless it can,
sugar beet growing will be halted, tariff or no tariff. The United States government is negotiating with the German and Russian governments for some hundred thousand sacks of sugar beet seed, but the issue is in doubt.
"Germany's food problems, at present engrossing, may operate adversely to the efforts of United States authorities. Though Germany has been able to meet her own requirements for grain, notice has been given that this year there must be a larger planting of sugar beet seed.
An increase in sugar consumption has been a feature of the past twelve months, the people eating more sugar
as a substitute for fat. Much sugar has been used in preserving fruit, much has been sent to the front to soldiers, and quantities have been fed to live stock.

"Other considerations suggest to the ministry the necessity of increasing the beet crop. Molasses from the sugar mills has proved a valuable horse-feed at the front, and is becoming the main reliance. Furthermore, factories are springing up which require molasses as a basis for producing a newly invented yeast for animals.

"A larger sowing is also necessary
because the scarcity of nitrogenous
commercial fertilizers renders extension of the crop necessary in order to get even as the same harvest as previously. An inadequate force of laborers and plough-horses is also used as an argument for enlarging the beet plantings. So there is more to contend with than the very substantial difficulty of exporting beet seed from Germany. There may not be beet seed enough to spare for American needs after German planters are supplied."

PRIMARY DAY.

Tomorrow is the time selected by law for voters to express their choice
for various candidates for the office of councilman. The field is large with the eight candidates seeking nomination, all extolling their own individual claims to the office so that the average voter can really judge for himself as to their merits and qualities. It is the duty of every citizen fit for the position they seek.
But two will be selected Tuesday, to be voted for at the regular election April 14th. This, in other words, is merely a preliminary canter for the big spring handicap. A try-out, as it were, for the race that takes place in two weeks. It is the duty of every citizen to express their opinion at the polls and it is to be hoped that the vote will be sufficiently large so that there can be no mistaking the real sentiment on this important matter of selecting candidates for one of the most responsible positions the city has to offer.

THE DELEGATION.

On April 4th the choice of delegates to the various national conventions of the various political parties will be made. Wisconsin is looked to with interest by the nation at large as a possible indication of what will be the temperament of the republican national convention, whether ultra-progressive or merely republican, without any "isms" or "chisms." It is to be hoped that the voters will see fit to name as their state and district representative men selected in open convention of republicans at Madison assembled and not the little coterie of personal followers of an ambitious politician seeking personal advertisement, selected behind closed doors.
Emmanuel L. Philipp, Ellingson,
Cook and Baensch, named as delegates at large, and Storm of Racine and Ingersoll of Beloit for delegates from the first congressional district.
If elected they will go to Chicago uninstructed for any individual candidate
but bound by the will of the majority of the republicans in Wisconsin
to help select the strongest man possible for the republican presidential nomination. This selection is made at the regular spring election and its importance must not be overlooked.

Every indication points to the fact
Spring is really on her way north,
but still Jack Frost does not wish to give up his hold on his temporary kingdom; and retreat to the northward
without a few more skirmishes.

One of the examples of protection of wild game by state and federal laws is found in the fact that within the limits of Beloit and above the city in Janesville thousands of migratory water fowl have stopped to rest in the open water, evidently assured that they are protected against hunters.
This means better hunting in the fall
and a gradual increase in the sum-total of the wild fowls of the country.

One way to boost Janesville is to talk about its advantages on every opportunity that arises. Forget any possible drawbacks that you may imagine exist and think only of the bright side of affairs. Janesville is a pretty good place to live in after all
and do not forget to mention it.

Farmer sows looking at the question of seed corn seriously and many are making exhaustive tests with surprising results. However there will be need of many hundreds of bushels of seed in Rock county by planting time as last year's early frosts and late harvest played havoc with many fields.

It is not too early to prepare for the Janesville fair. It is going to be one of the best and a truly Rock county exhibition this year. The wonderful display of fine cattle and horses last summer made their impression on the average fair visitor and will attract stock men from all over the country.

Few city residents realize that the herds in Rock county are fast becoming known the country over as the best in certain lines of fine blooded stock and that shipments are being made weekly to even the Dakota's of Rock county bred cattle. It speaks well for the prosperity of the county.

The Daily Novelette

A Guilty Conscience.
Should your beau be not droil
In his manner or talk
And you took a long stroll
Would it be a "bored walk?"

Dapper Vernon Moch, having systematically robbed the Four Hundred and Eighth National Bank, where he was seventh assistant cashier for nine years, at last had enough money to our story opens, to realize his life ambition. At last he was rich enough to take singing lessons from Oswald Gigoni.
"I wish to have my voice manicured—I mean cultivated," he told the famous master.
"Eighty-two dollars a lesson," replied Gigoni.
"Certainly," said Vernon Moch.
"With pleasure," said Gigoni. "I will try your voice." And he struck a chord.
"Take large C, please," Moch's throat rendered a crocodile
listening in the bay nearby, violently ill.
"Now take small F," said Gigoni.
And Moch uttered a sound that killed the crocodile's brother, fifty feet under water.
What other notes have you taken?" asked Gigoni, whirling suddenly on the stool and fixing his sharp eyes on Vernon Moch.
With a start of fear, the young seventh assistant cashier fainted, and called up the police who, searching the unconscious man, found eleven million dollars in marked bank notes in his pockets, and he ended his career

in jail without the courage of his convictions.

JAPANESE INNS ARE QUEER

Guests Must Leave Their Footwear in the Vestibule When Going to Their Rooms.

The entrance to native inns in Japan is most always a roofed vestibule with a well-trodden earthen floor backed by a raised platform about twenty inches high, forming at once a seat and the outer extension of the first floor.

A scattered line of shoes, sandals and gets belonging to the guests usually lie along it, and at one side is a cupboard where umbrellas and foot-gear are deposited. A big drop octagon clock on the wall, a low desk, a hibachi and a pile of cushions generally complete the office equipment.

The traveler's jinrikai customarily deposits him in the vestibule, at the edge of the platform, beneath the overhang
of the roof. Shouts of "O Kvakusan" (honorable visitors) apprise the masters and the maids that a guest is arriving, and all hurry forward to receive him, uttering cries of welcome and bowing glossy black heads to the floor.

As the traveler sits on the platform
a servant removes his shoes and others divest him of his wraps. Shoes are seldom cleaned, and if they are wet
or muddy they are left untouched.
Habitual frequenters of inns often provide themselves with foot coverings to slip over shoes and thus be able to wear them to the apartment. Without them one must don the heelless slippers furnished or go to one's room
unshod.—Kansas City Times.

STOP AND THINK, MR. VOTER

The position of councilman is not one to be talked of lightly.

The candidate should stand on his own merits solely.
It is not a question of religion, fraternal or secret organization membership that should influence the voter.

We are not to choose a man to simply run the business end of the Janesville Water company. That is but part of the work.

Talk about efficiency in this direction is all bosh. The man who is to be elected councilman must have other requirements as well.

The candidate should stand on his own merits. He should not be backed by or influenced by any public service corporation at all.

The city finance, the lighting system, the streets, the sewers and in fact every line of activity is to be considered in this connection.

I am not backed by any individual interests. I am making this campaign on my own initiative and I stand on my own platform believing I am thoroughly equipped for the position
I seek.

If you believe in an efficient, honest and economical management of city affairs for the best interests of the tax payers
I solicit your vote on Tuesday next.

THE GIRL AND THE GAME ...

SYNOPSIS.

Little Helen Holmes, daughter of General Holmes, railroad man, is rescued from imminent danger on a scenic railroad by George Storm, a newsboy. Storm, now a fireman, her father, and his friends, Rhineland, Stanner, and Robert Seagrue, promoter, from a threatened collision. Safebreakers employed by Seagrue steal General Holmes' survey plans of the cut off line for the Tidewater, fatally wounding the general and escape. Her father's estate badly involved by his death, Helen goes to work on the Tidewater. Helen recovers the survey plans from Seagrue, and though they are taken from her, finds an accidentally made proof of the survey blueprint. Storm is employed by Rhineland. Spite, befriended by Helen, in his turn saves her and the right-of-way contracts when Seagrue kidnaps her. Helen and Storm win for Rhineland a race against Seagrue for right of way.

NINTH INSTALLMENT

A CLOSE CALL

Despite Seagrue's persistent opposition, Rhineland secured the right of way to enable him to complete the Superstition cut-off, and unable to stop the Tidewater construction work, Seagrue resolved to try other methods to defeat his rival.

Helen Holmes was enjoying the taste of camp life that her trip to the front had brought. And after the excitement had died down attending the destruction of Cassidy's house, she found herself amused and interested in Cassidy himself, who was busy next morning trying to restore a much-battered stove to service near the wreck of his shack. Helen watched his dazed efforts until sympathy overcame her, and excusing herself, she walked over to where Cassidy was struggling to get a fire going.

Seagrue, who had been watching the scene from a distance, saw Helen join the old fellow, and deemed it his opportunity to make tentative advances toward the collective enemy. Sauntering over, accordingly, he joined Helen at a moment in which she sent Cassidy for water and was herself watching the fire starting in the stove.

Helen looked up in astonishment when she heard Seagrue's greeting. Indeed, she resented his intrusion so strongly that she refused all communication with him and for a time he spoke into deaf ears.

"You ought not to be too hard on me, Helen," he urged at length. "Any man will fight for his life against ruin. That's all I've done. Everything I have in the world is tied up in this Superstition cut-off. But more than once I said to myself, I would willingly sacrifice it all to regain your friendship."

He spoke slowly and looked so beaten and worried as he lingered in the penumbra of Helen's gaze that she began to denounce him indignantly for his villainous conduct.

"I Hate to Bring These Back, but I Can't Double-Cross Seagrue!"

He took her stinging reproaches without resentment. "I admit," he said, "my temper carries me too far, sometimes."

"Sometimes," echoed Helen. "A hundred and fifty!"

"When I do get angry," confessed Seagrue, "I lose my head. I stop at nothing. When it's all over, nobody is sorrier for it than I am. I have acted shamefully. I know that. And what hurts the most is that it should have cost me your friendship and my uncle's."

While the talk thus begun the two was going on in this fashion, Storm, who had been experimenting with some new jacks, noticed what Helen was doing; and that the man standing near her was none other than Seagrue. Scarcely able to believe his eyes, the young constructionist called to Rhineland to look. The latter disengaged himself from his new machines long enough to see what Storm had seen and putting another man in charge of the work, he hurried off, followed by Storm, over to Cassidy's zone.

They arrived together just in time to find Seagrue putting wood on Helen's fire. He turned from his peaceful role to greet Rhineland, quite casually, with a good morning; Helen in good spirits, was stepping rapidly around preparing a meal. Rhineland looked from one to the other in amazement, and striding forward, confronted Seagrue. "What does all this thing mean?" he demanded angrily. "What are you up to now, Seagrue?" (To be continued.)

NEWS NOTES FROM MOVIELAND

Dorothy Green, last seen in the production of "A Parisian Romance" will appear shortly in support of Edmund Breece in a five-part production as yet unnamed. Following this, Miss Green will be starred alone, it is announced. Among some of Miss Green's best features are "A Wonderful Adventure," with William Farnum, and "Her Mother's Secret," with Ralph Kellard.

Miss Green is a native of Russia, and came to this country at the age of three. It was always her ambition to go on the stage, but when she was eleven years old an operation on her vocal cords practically ruined her voice. Fortunately for her, one can be highly successful in the movies without a voice.

PROFESSOR TURNS MOVIE VILLAIN.
Warner Oland, who plays a villain in many photoplays, was born in Sweden. Williams college had him as a professor of dramatic literature before he became an actor. That was shortly after his graduation as a student at Williams.

He is married and his family life is unmarred by anything like his screen villainies. Before he went into pictures Oland had important roles on the stage with Viola Allen, Nazimova, Helen Ware, Robert Hillard and Sothorn and Marlowe. His best known screen roles have been in the Theda Bara plays, "Sin" and "Destruction."

The Extreme of Filial Love. The height of filial love, devotion, affection and several other attributes was discovered in the probate court of Allegheny county last week. In reviewing an estate Judge Thompson found the claim of a man against his father for time and expense attending the father's funeral. He itemized his claim, railroad fare, hack fare, etc., and $3 per day for his time. It is actually on record. Nothing has come into court in a long time that had such lasting and poignant humor.

They say T. R. is the only American citizen who has sat before kings and queens. Huh! We have sat before a lot of them and had them beaten.

Jealousy.

Jealousy is a consumption bred within the structured house of love when all its windows are sealed. When we are jealous we try to shut ourselves up in a shadowed privacy or timid miserliness. We want some one all to ourselves. We fear that if we open the doors and let in the current of others' affection or the winds of impersonal interest our own share of love may be swept away.

A woman may be jealous not only of her husband's friends, but of his work and even of his religion. This means she has kept her windows closed and shuttered, so that she looks always at the walls of her house of love, never through and beyond them.—Dr. R. C. Cabot.

Light of the Future.

Professor Uric Dahlgren of Princeton university predicts that the time will come when the luciferous substance of chemical composition carried by flames, certain fish and other animals will be used for illuminating houses and other purposes. He believes that this will come about when the nature and proportions of the chemical constituents of these substances are discovered and says they will give a light having an efficiency of 99 per cent instead of the 15 per cent produced by lights now in use.

AT MYERS THEATRE.
One of the funniest speeches in that delightful farce "It Pays to Advertise" which is to be presented at the Myers Theatre Thursday, March 23 is made by Rodney Martin the rich man's son. Rodney having been coerced into entering upon a business career, decides to launch a big advertising campaign which is not approved by his sire.

In an effort to convince him, Rodney says:

"You don't believe in advertising? I guess you do."

"What makes you go to the theatre?"

"Don't tell me, I'll tell you."

"It's something you've been told about a play."

"And what you've been told, the other fellow's been told and the fellow that told him read it somewhere."

"Ninety-five percent of the public are sheep, and all you've got to do is start them right and they'll follow each other trying to follow the leader."

"Do you know that the day after Bryan endorsed Grape Juice the sales went up nine thousand nine hundred and ninety-nine gallons a day?"

"Say, what kind of duck eggs do you eat?"

"It Pays to Advertise" is one of those plays that it would be a misfortune to miss seeing, for it supplies the laugh treatment in altogether satisfactory quantities, besides imparting a brisk and business like tonic to the man seeking success in the commercial world, who laughs up roars at the plot of this farce, but departs a firm believer in the power of the press and the psychology of print.

AT MYERS THEATRE.
The efficiency experts tell us—and in this there are right beyond question—that we are doing so badly in our business or social activities that we cannot do justice to ourselves. Get away from your work once in a while and get a new perspective. If you cannot afford the time and expense of actual travel, then go with H. Howe at the Myers theatre March 24 and 25, matinee Saturday.

You will benefit greatly from the world-excursion he offers at insignificant expense. It will take you on Alpine heights, noted in the past through enchanting Madeira and Holland—even though it is surrounded by the streets of New York City. It will take you through turbulent mountain torrents and on a ride via aeroplane above the clouds. Besides there will be a tangle of a torpedo boat with the elements of the sea, and some distinct novelties illustrating possibilities of motion photography that hitherto were undreamed of. Among them is a film showing at a very slow rate of speed every detail of the movements of various animals which ordinarily are entirely too swift for the human eye to detect. Another curious one is the same time most instructive film showing the crystallization of different metals by cooling in water or by electricity.

Over the trails of Glacier national park in northwestern Montana, and the making of an automobile at the plant of the Willys-Overland company Toledo, Ohio, are subjects of our own country which will do much towards acquainting Americans with America. Besides all this Howe's comedy cartoon artists have interlarded the entire program in their own inimitable way.

AT THE APOLLO.
Pauline Frederick Tuesday in Bella Donna.

Robert Hitchen's novel "Bella Donna" was one of the most talked of stories of its day. The wonderful descriptive powers of the writer were second only to the dramatic force of his story, as staged by H. H. Howe, the dramatic adaptation of the novel, Alla Nazimova scored a great personal triumph. But it has remained for the photographer and Pauline Frederick to combine the gripping interest of the story with the visualization of the author's word pictures.

Let the famous plot be forgotten—Bella Donna is an adventuresome beauty leads the Hon. Nigge Armine to marry her, unsuspecting that the stories which have been circulated in London concerning her escapades are based upon fact. The scene is set in Egypt, where Bella Donna, soon being of Armine, becomes fascinated by Baroudi, a powerful native, who induces her to marry him. Before Bella Donna succeeds in carrying out her intention to the full, Dr. Isaacson, an old friend of Armine, arrives in time to save her life. Her purpose defeated, Bella Donna pursues but torrent of hatred and abuse upon Armine's head and departs for Baroudi's home.

To her horror, Baroudi discards her and when she returns repentant to her home, she is turned away by Isaacson. Before she can appeal to the sympathies of her husband. Alone and forlorn, she stands looking out into the black night across the bleak desert that typified her wasted life.

This picture will be seen Tuesday at the Apollo.

AT THE APOLLO.
Cleo Ridgley and Wallace Reid in "The Golden Chance."

The fourth of a series of strong dramatic photoplays which has to do with woman and with woman's problems, will be "The Golden Chance," a play production in which Cleo Ridgley and Wallace Reid appear for the first time on the Paramount program as co-stars and which will be seen at the Apollo on Wednesday.

"The Golden Chance" is one that essentially is said to be the motion picture form of narrative. It relates the experiences of a young woman of refinement who, after a few miserable years as the wife of an undesirable, suddenly by chance is thrown into contact with men and women of her own kind. A young millionaire falls in love with her, but she keeps her true identity under cover until confronted by her own husband, who is discovered burglarizing the house in which she is staying as a guest.

The dramatic climax of "The Golden Chance" comes with a fine encounter between the young woman's husband and the youth who is infatuated with her. Wallace Reid in this fight is even more realistic than he was in the stirring duel which he fought with William Elmer in the Lasky production of "Carmen."

"THE STRIKE" IS A LABOR PLAY

Sunday Performance at Myers Theatre Tells of the Struggles of the Masses Against the Capitalists.

"The Strike" tells a story of the working man's struggles against the capitalists. It tells about a young civil engineer who is struggling to get a bridge across a gorge. Just as it is near completion the men strike and one of the stockholders of the company tells some of the men that their foreman, the young engineer, is fighting against them. The men turn on the engineer and order him to leave town before sunrise or they will carry him out on a stretcher.

The next act shows the president of the board talking with the engineer. The president offers to take the men back and give them their increase in salary if he in turn will give up his daughter, whom he, the engineer, loves. He then threatens the men that he will call out the militia. Then the engineer says he will give her up and the men go back to work. The engineer, persistent in her love for the engineer, says that she will not give him up. Then the father gives his consent and the strike is off.

The play was intermingled with a fine vein of comedy that everyone likes; and taking all in all "The Strike" always pleases the masses.

William Farnum IN THE NIGGER OR THE NEW GOVERNOR

In this play Edward Sheldon, America's most significant young dramatist handles unflinchingly and with unerring power, a modern problem that must be faced fairly and squarely by the people of the United States.

The topic which forms the motif of this striking drama is one which legislators and serious thinkers have grappled with unsuccessfully since the days of slavery. Mr. Sheldon is the first playwright however who has had the courage to tackle the subject dramatically.

In the William Fox production, William Farnum, America's most popular young actor, gives a sublime performance of the self sacrificing hero, Philip Morrow. Under the masterful directorship of Edgar Dwyer, the enrapturing drama works out to the proportions of a mighty business plan, unusually wise and as it does with the gravest social, moral and political conditions.

ply to the city of Milwaukee, is the opinion of Attorney General Owen to R. E. Loveland, secretary of the fund. The original law specifically exempted the city of Milwaukee. An amendment was incorporated by the last legislature, which left the matter in doubt. The attorney general holds that the general tenor of the reading of the law is to exempt Milwaukee, which has a separate system of its own.

FOODS THEY BUILD OR DESTROY

Amazing but rarely suspected truths about the things you eat.

CHAPTER 30.

Babies are taught to walk with a broken staff. This in the United States is reared a race of such feeble vitality that 400,000 children under ten years of age totter every year into an abyss of untimely death.

Three times a day for 365 days each year a table is spread in each of twenty million households in the United States. This means that sixty million meals, however simple, are served for the pleasure and nutrition of the family between the rising and setting of every sun.

At each of these annual billions of meals—billions upon billions are too few to count—2,000,000,000, to be exact, the housewife places one article of food on the table. Whether that table be set in a mansion or in a hovel, the food is loaded with an abundance of the luxuries of life or other its contents be confined to one or two simple articles of food, there is one food always present.

It is to be wondered at, therefore, that bread is called the "staff of life."

Why then if the staff on which humanity leans so trustingly be "broken?"

The flour advertisements with which the magazines are crowded tell us of the "purest" and "finest" flour. Millions of dollars are spent annually to produce flour that is white, soft, and fluffy. It is sifted, screened, and sifted through fine sieves and silk bolting cloth until nothing leaves the mill but utterly perfect flour.

plant grown in Yucatan, Mexico. During the last month, according to Schmidt there has been only one shipment of sisal from the United States and that was under the protection of a United States cruiser.

However that has all been used and factories in Minnesota and Wisconsin have quit taking orders for twine waiting until they are sure they can secure more sisal, which seems to be at this time extremely unlikely.

The average price for twine last year was 3 1/2 to 4 cents a pound with sisal selling at shipment points at about 4 cents a pound. The latest quotations on sisal have been around 7 1/2 cents a pound.

Mr. Schmidt believes that the agricultural department of the United States government will take a hand to further the manufacture of binder twine from hemp. Hemp produces a high grade but also a high priced binder twine.

It is believed that a machine could be invented which would pick the stems and coarse leaves from the hemp, which is now done by hand, thus allowing the product to be made more cheaply and sold at more desirable prices.

THE MILLERS WHO MAKE OUR FLOUR ASURE US THAT THEY ARE CONFERRING A GREAT BLESSING UPON HUMANITY IN PREPARING A PURE WHITE PRODUCT.

To obtain a still whiter whiteness they even go so far as to bleach by an electro-chemical process the demineralized flour which passes through their silk bolting cloths.

To color them with 400,000 children under ten years of age who died in the United States last year, notwithstanding the daily familiarity with white breadstuffs which these children suffered without resistance, is but to puke a smile fortified by "proofs" of the benevolence of their conduct. These proofs usually bear the signature of scientists.

What scientists' signatures can open up these little graves and deliver back to the fond and empty arms of grieving parents the million five hundred thousand children that have died in this country during the past four years?

What will scientists' signatures do for the enfeebled soldiers who survive the European war or for their halved and maimed children during the reconstruction period that faces them?

In the many public controversies which I have had with the millers they have frankly admitted that they do not give the people white flour or white bread products through their own choice. They say that because the people think they want white flour and white bread they are obliged to cater to such wants. These admissions are nevertheless usually accompanied by a statement that white bread as contrasted with bread made from the whole grain possesses "superior digestibility."

Nothing is said of the alarming increase of cancer, diabetes, Bright's disease, heart disease and hardening of the arteries, all causing so much concern among life insurance companies on account of the fact that their chief victims are found in middle age.

Nothing is said about the fact that at the age of forty, when man should be at his best, and continuing until his fiftieth year the increase in these diseases is at its height.

There is much evidence to indicate that middle-age mortality is directly associated with denatured food. All of such evidence will be submitted here in its proper place.

Of course there are other causes also at work in the production of some of these increasingly prevalent middle-age diseases, but the facts, which will be treated with sufficient detail, indicate conclusively that denatured and refined food is chief among these causes.

Question—Can I manure ground proved in the fall? That is, can I manure it this spring?

Answer—Yes. Top dressing is one of the best methods of applying manure, especially to clay soils. It is applied by spreading the manure over the surface of the field, and then turning it under with a plow or harrow.

Question—How shall I best handle ground tobacco that was seeded with rye last fall?

Answer—The best way is to first plow the field thoroughly, then harrow, and then turn under the tobacco stalks with a plow or harrow.

Question—It is too late to work tobacco in the spring?

Answer—Experienced horticulturists say that pruning during the winter or dormant season tends to stimulate growth and make the tree more vigorous. It may be done at any time excepting in very severe winter weather, but it is best done in early spring just before buds swell or growth starts. The March number of the Farming says:

The difference of opinion regarding practice of pruning trees, but the most successful growers prune consistently. The principal object may be summed up as follows:

1. To modify the vigor of the tree.

2. To keep the tree shapely and within bounds.

3. To make the tree more stocky.

4. To open the tree top to admit air and sunshine.

5. To reduce the struggle for existence in the tree top.

6. To remove dead or interfering branches.

7. To aid in stimulating the development of fruit buds.

8. To thin the fruit.

9. To make thorough spraying possible.

10. To facilitate the harvesting of the fruit.

Obviously the pruning which a tree receives during the first two or three years after it is planted has much to do with its future. Mistakes in forming the head or the result of neglect during the early years in the life of a tree are practically irreparable. Prune carefully; prune often. It pays to prune.

Question—I have a small June grass pasture. Can it seed it to any thing else without plowing it up?

Answer—Medium red clover and alsike may be sown on the pasture at this time when there are freezing nights with thawing days.

It should be sown broadcast at the rate of from four to six quarts an acre. In case of a permanent pasture it is well to do this every other year or the clover a biennial plant.

Question—I have a five acre field that is lower in the center than on the sides so low that water collects here making it impossible for me to till the soil until late in the Spring and sometimes after a heavy rain. Would it be possible for me to drain the water off through the underlying gravel which is probably not more

Heart and Home PROBLEMS

—By—
MRS. ELIZABETH THOMPSON
Letters may be addressed to
MRS. THOMPSON
In care of the Gazette.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: (1) I am a girl twenty-one years of age and I keep house for my father, as I have no mother. She died two years ago. I do the work all alone and I have six or seven sisters, some older and some younger. I don't get any pay. I don't think I ought to. I have asked, but it doesn't seem to do any good. (2) How much do you think I should have a week? My father likes me very much. (3) I am going with a young man twenty-one years of age. He wants to take a fellow to my home, but he doesn't seem to care enough to support a wife. What could you do? I love him dearly and don't want to give him up. I am afraid I won't have many more chances, as I am getting old. I am considered good-looking by nearly everybody. (4) How old can a girl be before she is too old to marry? (5) There is a fellow who clerks in a downtown grocery store who draws my attention every time he sees me. He seems to like me very much. He always wants to talk to me and I don't pay any attention to him. I don't love him, although I believe I could learn to. How can I get him to come to see me? (6) I am going to a party and I want to take a fellow with me. My fellow can't get away on account of working nights, don't you think it all right to take this other one. I am backward among strangers. (7) How long should a couple go together before they are engaged? My cousin has gone with a fellow for three years and they aren't married yet, and he makes twenty dollars a week. (8) Are the suits that are being worn now going to stay in style for awhile? If so, what colors would be nice for me? I have blue eyes and brown hair.

A MOTHERLESS BABE.

(1) Your sisters ought to help you with the work, and you should receive an allowance, too. (2) The amount you have should depend upon what your father can afford to pay you. If he buys your clothes a dollar or two a week would be a reasonable amount. But if he does not buy your clothes you should have from three to six dollars. I should think you would like to buy your own clothes from the amount you get and be independent. You must remember that you are getting your board, too, and take that into consideration when you ask your father to pay you for the work you do. (3) If I loved the man I would wait until he could earn enough to support me. A girl of twenty-one need not worry about not being married. (4) Women of all ages get married. A great many marry after they are thirty nowadays. (5) He will ask to come to see you if he wants to very much. (6) You should not take a boy who has not taken you somewhere. (7) There is no fixed length of time that a couple should go to together before becoming engaged. I suppose the average time is about a year. (8) Now that full skirts are again here I don't believe that styles will change a great deal for awhile. A blue or a black and white check suit would be becoming to you.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: (1) I am sixteen years old. Am I too young for a suit? (2) Is a dark blue to be worn this summer? (3) I would like to be tall. I indulge in all outdoor sports, swimming, tennis, etc., and still I do not seem to grow. What can I do to grow? (4) Are rubber soles and heels going to be worn this summer?

(1) No. (2) Many suits are dark blue. (3) There is nothing besides what you are doing that will make you grow. (4) Yes. Dear Mrs. Thompson: Would it be proper for a girl to go to the show with a neighbor boy of nineteen? LIDIA. It would be proper if she is eighteen or older.

HEALTH TALKS

By WILLIAM BRADY, M. D.

Letters may be addressed to Wm. A. BRADY, M. D., in care of the Gazette.

HOT MUSTARD PASTE.

Sometimes, writes a schoolma'am of parts, I think you are a little too hard on the grandmothers and old-fashioned people. You are certainly an iconoclast, and your ridicule of these old ideas borders on the dictatorial. A good doctor was called to attend a case of grippe, and the first thing he did was to order a mustard paste applied. And an old grandmother applied it with the happiest effect!

All of which is good and true. Haven't we openly apologized to grandma right here in cold type for our stunts? Haven't we admitted that her good old-fashioned mustard beats any canned mud ever invented? Hasn't scientific investigation shown that one of grandma's flaxseed pastes gives greater relief, and is a whole lot cleaner than the modern medicated clay imitations? Haven't we harped right along on the same old tune how grandma's old-time cough "cureup," bonnet, catnip, chamomile and other "yab" teas are the only kind of home remedies we want to take when we are sick? No, teacher, you can't stir up a quarrel between this department and grandma. We just wish you could read some of the letters we receive from grandmas eighty and more, and see how old-fashioned people have won the battle of common sense until they reach the grandma era of life.

Now, a mustard paste properly made, and watched to see that it doesn't raise a blister—one part of mustard flour to four of wheat flour, cold water and just a wee bit of white egg (our own grandma insists on this, to prevent blistering, she says), the paste to be rubbed as soon as the skin reddens up there isn't a better pain-killer or a more effective local antidote for internal inflammation in the whole materia medica.

If you young schoolteachers and housekeepers would listen to grandma, and not run off to the drugstore for some nicely flavored done every time you have anything wrong, we doctors wouldn't have so much practice to swell our heads.

When we speak of the "grandmothers" we generally refer to those who are grandmothers in conduct only—most of em wear trousers. We need more militant grandmas and less audacious nostrum-mongers. A household blessed with a real live grandma who won't be ignored is very fortunate indeed.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.

Kerosene for Chilblains. The self-same teacher who started the above harangue asks us to publish a remedy which she states she has used with unfailing benefit for chilblains, frostbite. She says it is better than rubbing on snow. The remedy is kerosene. We pass it on without any personal knowledge about it.

Nævus on Face. Our baby, nine months old, has a raised, purplish mark on one cheek, as big as a dime, with what looks like little veins running out into the skin around it. It appeared right after birth, and seems to be getting a little larger. What is it, and is there any remedy?

Answer—Nævus. After the second year electrolysis or surgical removal is necessary.

The Tobacco Habit. A correspondent, S. D. F. G., asks for some advice for the cure of the tobacco habit. I hold a monograph upon the subject which I shall be glad to send him upon receipt of a stamped, addressed envelope.

POSITIVE PROOF. "Yes, the autograph I just showed you is one of the best in my collection."

"But are you sure it is genuine?" "Positive! I cut it from a telegram that his wife received from him with my own hands."

If you want to buy or sell anything use the want ads.

Household Hints

LENTEN DISHES.

Vegetable Soup—Boil in two quarts water one cup each of chopped cabbage, potatoes and turnips; season to taste and when tender add one cup chopped celery, one quart tomatoes and 1½ cups macaroni. Cook until done and serve hot. Good and nourishing.

Mock Fish—Grind one cup pecan meats and mix with two cups cold molasses, half cup bread crumbs, two hard-boiled eggs chopped fine, tablespoon parsley, tablespoon grated onion, salt and pepper to taste, one-half hour in moderate oven. Serve with Hollandaise sauce and skinned lemon.

Hot Cabbage Salad—One small head cabbage chopped fine. Dressing: One egg, one tablespoon butter, one tablespoon sugar, two tablespoons vinegar, four tablespoons quick sweet cream, one-half teaspoon mustard, salt and pepper to taste. Mix all together, cook till thick, pour over cabbage and serve hot.

Palate Lunches—Salad—To 1½ cups cooked Italian peas add one cup diced apples, half cup diced celery, one-fourth cup cooked raisins. Put French dressing over all but raisins, let stand thirty minutes, arrange on lettuce leaves, stand on ice and serve very cold. Cream cheese sandwiches are a nice accompaniment.

Oyster Salad—Two cups oysters, two cups diced celery, two eggs, one-fourth cup cream, one-fourth cup vinegar, one-half teaspoon mustard, one-fourth teaspoon celery salt, one-half teaspoon salt, few grains cayenne, one tablespoon butter. Drain, wash and parboil oysters; drain again. Beat the eggs, add slowly the cream and vinegar, seasonings and salt. Cook in double boiler until life soft custard. Add the drained oysters. Cool on ice and add dressing. Time add the celery. Serve on crisp lettuce leaves.

Potato Sausage—One-half cup butter, one-fourth cup cold milk, one-half onion, one-half pound cold bread crumbs, salt and pepper to taste, two beaten eggs. Mix all ingredients thoroughly together with a spoon (wooden spoon is best), then form into sausages, tie each well in cloth and boil exactly as a roll. Only eat when eaten when newly cooked. Put aside until when wanted. This sausage is also good if oatmeal is added instead of bread crumbs, or it may be made half oatmeal and half bread crumbs. Sufficient for twelve sausages.

THINGS WORTH KNOWING. When boiling eggs wet the shells thoroughly in cold water before dropping in the boiling water; they will not crack.

In laying a carpet in a room where there is a register, the center of the square section register should be pierced by the center of the carpet. The carpet should be cut diagonally to the four corners. The four pieces should be turned under. If the carpet is ever taken up to be used elsewhere, the pieces may be easily darned together again and hardly noticed.

Make Dustless Dusters—Add one tablespoon each of linseed oil and turpentine to one quart of boiling water. Wet cloth in this solution and wring it dry.

Stair Carpet Pads may be made by folding waste cotton or pieces of old quilts in newspapers. Have them a little shorter than the carpet and lay them on the carpet and under the sound of foot-steps. Old pieces of carpet doubled are very good for this purpose.

THE TABLE.

Haricot of Mutton—Two tablespoons chopped onions, two tablespoons butter or drippings, two cups water, salt and pepper, 1½ pounds lean mutton or lamb cut in two-inch pieces. Fry onions, add meat and brown, cover with water and cook until meat is tender. Serve with border of lima beans and chopped parsley.

THINGS WORTH KNOWING. Small roast fowls often burn before done. Make a piece of clean white cloth, fold five or six times, wring out of water, lay on top of fowl and baste as often as necessary, not removing cloth. The cloth keeps steam in. Remove cloth to brown the fowl. It will be much sweeter and juicier in this way.

Quick Way to Cut Noodles—After noodle dough is dry, but not brittle, cut into strips about two or three inches wide and lay these strips one on top of the other, when they may be cut broad or fine as desired.

Marrying for Money

—By MRS. EVA LEONARD.

Jacob Townsend Puts to Test His Wife's Newly Professed Loyalty.

"Mrs. Morton," called Mrs. Tupper, leaning her plump arms on the fence. "Nell was bending over a bed of carnations, them up and trimming them ready for Dick to carry to the cellar. She dusted the dirt off her garden gloves as she walked to her side of the fence. 'Did you see Mr. To's end start for the ride?' she asked as Nell came near the road. 'No,' said Nell, gazing into the honest face glow with cheerful enthusiasm. 'I was working out here and cannot see the road. So he is able to go for a ride? How glad I am.' 'Yes, Dudley and George and I were out there. He said it would not hurt him if the ride was so long and she drove slowly over smooth roads. The honest creature wiped her eyes. 'You see, I feel like one of the family; not a bit like a servant. For five years I managed everything, and mothered little Marian. She was only eleven years old when I came. Yes, five years is a long time,' she mused.

"I am glad I stayed by them. I was tempted to leave several times after this marriage, but the thought that that man and those dear children might have to eat half-cooked food and perhaps get sick made me decide to stick it out. Yes, I am glad I stayed. I should have blamed my self if I had left and this had happened, this sickness, I mean. I should have thought perhaps he was run down with poor cooking, but now I know he has had the best to eat and lots of it, and everything has been done for his comfort."

"It certainly would have been hard for them to have gotten along without you," said Nell. "Mr. Townsend really better this morning?"

"Mrs. Tupper sorrowfully shook her head. "It is only a question of time, I guess. Nothing will ever make him well again. Isn't it strange that this should be the first ride he ever had in the machine?"

"Is that possible? They had it two or three months before he was taken sick. I never saw them go out together, but I supposed of course they had been. Nell was using what Dick called her gossip tones, low and eager.

"No, they never did. I guess it is no secret that things were none of the pleasantest between them. It is what killed him, seeing what a mess he had made of everything, and what trouble everyone was in. Oh, yes, I could see him age every day."

"Mrs. Townsend seems to be doing everything possible for him now." Nell plumed herself on being fair. "Yes," said the woman grudgingly. "She certainly has a different attitude. It is too bad she came to her senses too late." Honest Tupper tossed her head in scorn. "I must go and get his room ready for him. I left it airing. The flowers you sent over are as fresh as ever they were. I put them out of doors nights. I like to make them last, he enjoys them so much."

"It certainly is a lovely day for him to be out," said Nell as she turned from the fence. "Yes, if only they do not keep him out too long and tire him too much," Mrs. Tupper hurried away to be in readiness to assist the invalid to his bed when he returned.

ANSWERING THE CYNIC.

Some time ago the Wants-to-be-Cynic took the floor and told women how they could be more efficient about their housework. One thing he complained of was the way in which the average woman rushed from one thing to another.

An interesting letter in answer to the Cynic has been overlooked in a pigeon-hole. For the sake of the sex it so ably tends, I want to give it even at this late date.

"Yes, Mr. Cynic, we would save time if we didn't rush from one thing to another; but suppose on her way to cellar or refrigerator, the doorbell rings, or the telephone, or the baby awakens and cries, or the delivery boy comes in, is it any wonder if, by the time she has attended to any one or maybe all these demands upon her time and mind, she should have forgotten half of the things she started to get?"

Oh, do not think the guy who's swelled all up on hot air stuff. St. Peter is not hep to you and will not call your bluff; he's got you on the hip, old man, he'll shake you through the sieve—for you'll be small potatoes when it comes to take and give. With someone like the saint who talks unto your very soul, believe me, guy, you'll beat it through a mighty tiny hole; you puff and blow and swell up some down here upon the earth, and people stand in awe of you, and give you a wide berth. It may be that you're right at heart and not a selfish gink—but your inflated pompous style inclines to make us think that you are putting over bunk to boost yourself a few—not caring much for others, how they live or what they do. If you expect a crown, old man, when you have checked and gone, or want a friend or two on earth—cut out the stately con; help some poor mortal climb the hill, hand some poor boob a boost, make someone happy every day before you go to Leak & Gingle roost.

To Wash Real Lace Collars and other Fine Laces

Baste the lace to a piece of clean white muslin so that each point and picot is held firmly in place. Make a good lather of Ivory Soap and warm water and let the lace soak for thirty minutes. Then alternately press between hands and dip into the water until clean. Do not rub. If necessary, use a second clean sud of Ivory Soap. Then rinse in clear water, next in blue water and lastly in a thin starch. Tack on a board stretching the muslin evenly. When nearly dry, remove from the board and press thoroughly through the muslin. Do not put iron on the lace. When dry, cut the basting threads and you will find the lace like new.

A brisk, bright, sunny morning, with the wind west; the fairest sort of fair weather and with every prospect of its continuing, and yet here in the subway, going downtown in the morning, were many men and women carrying raincoats, goloshes and umbrellas. These were all downtown workers who keep in their various places of employment a complete rain equipment for use in case of emergency. It had rained the night before, and they had worn these things home. Now they were carrying them back downtown to be ready there the next time they needed them.—New York Sun.

Guarded His Beard.

As Sir Thomas More laid his head on the block he begged the executioner to wait a moment while he carefully placed his beard out of reach of the ax, for, he said, "it hath not committed treason," which reminds one of the story of Simon Lord Lovat, who the day before his execution on Tower hill bade the operator who shaved him be cautious not to cut his throat, as such an accident would cause disappointment to the gaping crowd on the morrow.—English Magazine.

Rubbing Out a Turner.

On New Bond street, in London, some years ago a Turner worth $300,000 was destroyed by a charwoman. The Turner was a water color drawing, and a painting in oils hung beside it. The owner pointed to the painting and said:

"That picture is dusty. Rub a damp cloth over it."

But the charwoman by mistake rubbed her damp cloth over the water color, turning it into a blot, a smudge and thus one of the finest Turners disappeared from the world.

Something To Build

A Bob-Sled

With the first appearance of snow every boy's thoughts turn, as by nature, to coasting. With most boys the common, small variety of sled, holding one or two passengers, affords ample sport; then, again, there are those whose fancy leads them to something larger, more exciting and thrilling—the bobsled.

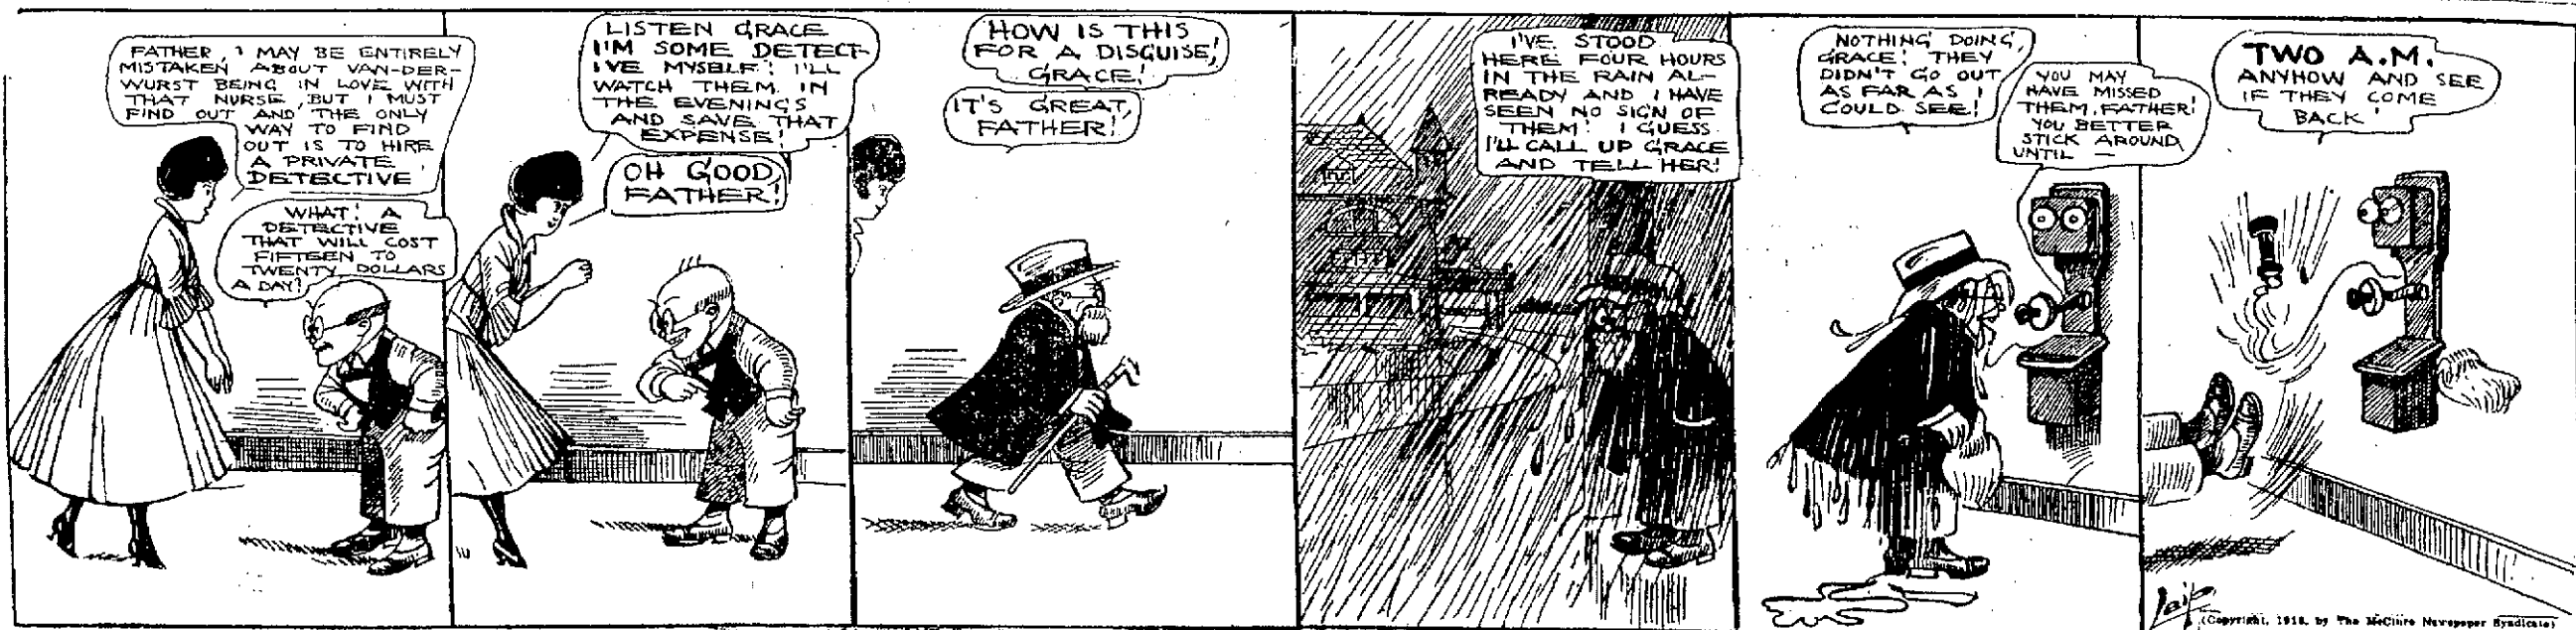

Find two small sleds the same height. The only tools you will need are: a hammer, a small wood chisel, a brace and one-half inch bit, and perhaps a saw. Having these, get a good, smooth board not less than 1-inch thick, about 5-inches wide and 7 or 8 feet long. Next obtain 4 wooden blocks 5-inches square and 1½-inches thick. (See Fig. 1.) Nail one of these blocks to the top of the front sled, as near the center as possible, and another to the underside of the long board, about 5-inches from the front end. In nailing the two blocks, be careful not to drive a nail too near the center where it would interfere with a hole to be bored later.

The remaining two blocks are to be nailed to the top of the rear sled, first one, then the other on top of it. Upon these nail the long board, allowing about 5-inches to extend over the blocks in the rear. Having done this take the brace and 1½-inch bit and place it exactly in the center of the block on the front sled, which would be just 3 inches from either edge, and bore a hole clear through both block and sled. Also bore a ½-inch hole clear through the block and long board in the same manner. Now get a ½-inch bolt fitted with a nut and two or three iron washers: Fig. 2. These need not be new and may be obtained from the village blacksmith if none are handy. Have the bolt about 5-inches long, so it will pass clear through both long board and top of sled and allow the nut to be screwed on underneath, with the iron washers between the blocks. It is well to have the head of the bolt drop down into the top-board so that there will be no danger of anyone having their clothing torn. This is accomplished by hewing a little out around the hole in the top-board with the wood chisel so that the head of the bolt will drop in.

The sled may be guided either by the hands or feet. For this purpose a strip of wood, about 2-inches wide and 1-inch thick, hewed down at each end to form a handle, and long enough to extend about 4-inches out on either side, is nailed across the top of the front runners. Short strips of wood may also be nailed across the top-board for foot rests. Fig. 3 is a full side view of the finished sled, with a sectional view showing the position of the bolt and washers.

CHAPTER I.

Jane Gerson, Buyer.

"I had two trunks—two, you nunny!"

"Two! Ou est l'autre?"

The grinning customs guard lifted

his shoulders to his ears and spread out his palms. "Mais, mamselle—

"Don't you make me say I had two trunks—deux trunks—when I got aboard that wabby old boat at Dover

this morning, and I'm not going to budge from this wharf until I find the other one! Where did you learn you

French, anyway? Can't you understand when I speak your language?"

The girl plumped herself down on top of the unhinged trunk and folded

her arms tranquilly. With a quizzical smile, the customs guard looked down into her brown eyes, smoldering

dangerously now, and began all over again his speech of explanation.

"Wagon-lit! She caught a familiar word. "Mais oui; that's where I want to go—aboard your wagon-lit, for Paris. Volla!"—the girl carefully rave the word three syllables—mon

troupeau!—she opened her

patent-leather valise, rummaged furtively therein, brought out a handkerchief, a tiny mirror, a packet of rice papers, and at last a folded and punched ticket. This she displayed with a triumphant flourish.

"Volla! It dit 'Miss Jane Gerson'!

that's me—mots-memo, I mean. And if dit deux trunks, dit you can't go behind that, can you? Where is that other trunk?"

A whistle shrieked back beyond the swinging doors of the station. Folk in the customs shed began a hasty gal-

lumphing together of parcels and hand-

traps, and a general exodus toward the train shed commenced. The girl on the trunk looked appealingly about her, holding but a hostile and defiant

no Samaritan to turn aside and rescue

a fair traveler fallen among customs guards. Her eyes filled with trouble,

and for an instant her reluctant mouth

curled into a pouting line. Her lower lip quivered suspiciously. Even the guard started to walk away.

"Oh, oh, please don't go!" Jane

Gerson was on her feet, and her hands were shot out in an impulsive

plea. "Oh, dear, maybe I forgot to tip you. Here, attende au secours, if you'll only find that other trunk before the train—

"Parion; but if I may be of any assistance—

Miss Gerson turned. A tallish, old young-looking man, in a gray lounge

suit, stood heels together and bent

servilely in a bow, looking at her

on the boulevard about his face or manner. Miss Gerson accepted his intervention as heaven-sent.

"Oh, thank you ever so much! The guard, you see, just can't understand

good French. I just can't make him understand that one of my trunks is missing. And the train for Paris—"

Already the stranger was rattling

in the French train, and she officially bowed low, and with hands and lips gave rapid explanation. The man in the gray lounge suit turned to the girl.

"A little misunderstanding, Miss—"

"Gerson—Jane Gerson, of New York," she promptly supplied.

"A little misunderstanding, Miss

Gerson. The customs guard says your other trunk has been examined,

passed, and placed on the baggage van. He was trying to tell you that it would be necessary for you to permit a porter to take this trunk to the train for Paris—

With your permission—

The stranger turned and hailed to a porter, who came running. Miss

Gerson had the trunk locked and placed in the baggage van, and it was on the shoulders of the porter.

"You have very little time, Miss

Gerson. The train will be making a start directly. If I might—ah—pilot

you through the station to the proper train shed, I am not presuming—"

"You are very kind," she answered

hurriedly.

They set off, the providential Samaritan in the lead. Through the waiting-room and on to a broad platform,

almost deserted, they went. A guard's whistle shrieked. The stranger tucked

a helping hand under Jane Gerson's

arm to steady her in the sharp sprint

down a long aisle between tracks to where the Paris train stood. It began to move before they had reached its mid-length. A guard threw open the carriage door, in they heaped, and with a rattling of chains and banging of bucers the Express du Nord was off

on its arrow flight from Calais to the capital.

The carriage, which was of the second class, was comfortably filled.

Miss Gerson stumbled over the

of a puffly Fleming nearest the door

was launched into the lap of a comfortable unpolished widow on the opposite seat. She glared back to him an elbow into a French gentleman's spread newspaper, and finally was entangled into a vacant space next to the window on the carriage's far side.

She greeted the skirts of her

near-by duster, and her

the chic sailor hat on her chestnut

brown head, and patted a stray wisp of hair back into place. Her

As for the Samaritan, he stood

uncertainly in the narrow cross aisle,

swaying to the swing of the carriage and recommitting seating possibilities. There was a place, a very narrow one next to the fat Fleming's

so there was a vacant place next to

Jane Gerson. The Samaritan caught

the girl's glance in his indecision, read

the scolding, frankly, comradely,

and chose the seat beside her.

American slang, you'll call it. If I could only rattle off the French as easily as I do New Yorkese, I'd be a wonder. I mean I'm afraid I won't.

"Oh!"

"But why should I worry about coming over alone?" Jane asked. "Lots of American girls come over here alone with an American flag pinned to their shirt-waists and wearing a Baedeker for a wrist watch. Nothing ever happens to them."

Captain Woodhouse looked out on the flying panorama of straw-thatched houses and fields heavy with green grain. He glanced at the passenger across the aisle, a wizened little man, asleep. In a lowered voice he began:

"A woman alone—over here on the Continent at this time? Why, I very much fear she will have great difficulties when the ah—trouble comes."

"Trouble?" Jane's eyes were questioning.

"Do not wish to be an alarmist, Miss Gerson," Captain Woodhouse continued, hesitating. "Goodness knows we've had enough calamity shouters among the Unionists at home. But you considered what you would do—how you would go back to America in case of war?"

"The last word was almost a whisper. 'War?' she echoed. 'Why, you don't mean all this talk in the papers is—'

"Is serious, yes," Woodhouse answered quietly. "Very serious."

"Why, Captain Woodhouse, I thought you had war talk every summer over here just as our papers are filled each spring with gossip about how Tesreau is going to jump to the Reds, or the Yanks are going to be sold."

"It's your regular midsummer outdoor sport over here, this stirring up the animals."

Woodhouse smiled, though his gray eyes were filled with something not mirth.

"I fear the animals are stirred, as you say, too far this time," he resumed. "The assassination of the Archduke Ferdinand."

"Yes, I remember I did read something about that in the papers at home. But archdukes and kings have been killed before, and no war came of it. In Mexico they murder a president before he has a chance to send out 'At Home' cards."

"Europe is so different from Mexico," her companion continued, the lines of his face deepening. "I am afraid you over in the States do not know the dangerous politics here."

"You are so far away, you would thank God for that. You are not in a land where one man—or two or three—can say, 'We will now go to war,' and then you go, willy-nilly."

The seriousness of the captain's speech and the fear that he could not keep from his eyes sobered the girl.

She looked out on the sun-drenched plains of Flanders, where the villages, hedged fields, and farmhouses lay all in order, established, seeming for all time in the plodding mass of the fields.

The slumberous omen drawing the harvest amid the beet roots, pigeons circling over the straw hatches by the tracks' side, all this denied the possibility of war's convulsion.

"Don't you think everybody is suffering from a bad dream when they say there's to be fighting?" she asked. "Surely it is impossible that folks over here would consent to destroy this."

She waved toward the peaceful countryside.

"A bad dream, yes. But one that will come to a nightmare," he answered. "Tell me, Miss Gerson, when will you be through with your work in Paris, and on your way back to America?"

"For a month; that's sure. May be I'll be longer, like the place."

"A month. This is the tenth of July. I am afraid—I say, Miss Gerson, please do not set me down for a meddler and a short acquaintance, and all that; but may I not urge on you that you finish your work in Paris and get back to England at least in two weeks?"

The captain had turned, and was looking back at the girl's eyes with an earnest intensity that startled her. "I can not tell you all I know, of course. I may not even know the truth, though I have a hunch of it."

"But one of your sorts to be caught alone on this side of the water by the madness that is brewing?"

"By George, I do not like to think of it."

"I thank you, Captain Woodhouse, for your warning," Jane answered him, and impulsively she put out her hand to his. "But you see, I'll have to run the risk. I couldn't go scamping just because somebody starts a war over here. I'm on trial. This is my first trip as a buyer for Hildebrand, and it's a case of make or break with me. War or no war, I've got to make good. Anybody with a taste of her round little chin—I'm an American citizen, and nobody'll dare to start anything with me."

"Right you are!" Woodhouse beamed his admiration. "Now we'll talk about those sky-scrapers of yours. Everybody back from the States has something to say about those famous buildings and the way they're burning for first-hand information from one who knows them."

Laughingly she acquiesced, and the grim shadow of war was pushed away from them though hardly forgotten by either. At the main prompting, Jane gave intimate pictures of life in the New World metropolis, touching with shrewd insight the facts and shams of New York's denizens even as she extolled the achievements of their restless energy.

A Carlyle View.

Carlisle compared the advance of the world to the progress of some drunken man who, reeling from one side of the street to the other, slowly and at the expense of much wasted effort, finally arrives at his destination.

A NOVEL

At first it was with head dropped and eyes on the ground that he plowed

"Please, Alix," He Begged, "Please Don't Cry."

his way through a dew-soaked world, but there came a time when he walked with head thrown back, full lungs and level eyes.

Then Kemp arrived. Gerry tried to get him to join him in his walks but Kemp shook his head sadly.

"If you can't let me have a horse, Mr. Lansing," he said, "I'll ride the cow."

Gerry laughed. They saddled the horses themselves and started out. On the top of old Bald Head Gerry dismounted and sat down on a rock. Kemp followed suit.

"Kemp," said Gerry, "I want to thank you for the things you said to me—Alix."

Kemp flushed and waved a deprecating hand.

"You saw things straight," went on Gerry, "and I want to thank you, too, for letting me hog-tie myself."

"I ain't curious about that, Mr. Lansing," said Kemp, "so much's about what you're goin' to do when you untie yourself."

"Well," said Gerry, "I've thought that out too. For a while it used to break my heart to think about Fazienda Flores but it came to me the other day that what there is of me that amounts to anything is just Fazienda Flores."

"When a man learns to eat work just like he does food because he's hungry for it, there's bound to be a place for him anywhere. It has struck me there are a lot of fields around here, some of them mine, that are about ready for resurrection, and resurrection is my job."

"I don't know exactly how I'm going to start but it may be planting potatoes. You can begin a resurrection with any one of a number of simple things. It doesn't matter much which one you pick on as long as you start right down at the bottom and spread yourself in the subsoil of things."

Everything that grows starts down deep except your orchids and they are parasites."

"Easy on orchids," interjected Kemp. "Sorry, Kemp. Orchids are ornamental but excepting your favorites they're not even beautiful. Look at a Cypripedium vexillarium."

"Hybrid," grunted Kemp. "A man in his D. T.'s couldn't beat it for gorgeous horror," finished Gerry. "But that's neither here nor there. What I'm driving at is this. If I had never been tossed over the home fence I would have lived and died an ornamental citizen with the girl of a beer barrel. But now my eyes are a bit open, and I can see that the simple things of life are the big things. Growth from the roots is the strength of a man and of his people. I've come home in more senses than one. I'm going to send down my roots right here."

Kemp had been whitening. When Gerry had finished he pocketed his knife and gazed thoughtfully down the valley. "It seems to me, Mr. Lansing, that you don't have been traveling different trails but come together at the same gap. You remember 'The Purple City'?"

Gerry nodded.

"Wal, seems to me that 'ceptin' in a man's own mind the ain't no purple cities. What a man's got to find ain't purple cities, but the power to see one when he's got it. You had your right here in this valley an' you side on Red Hill. You grew up in it but you never seen it—not till you learned how. What you been sayin' about the simple things of life—the things that is at the bottom—has he's he's seen 'em parts a powerful lot. I knowed before I come to Red Hill that I was goin' out West to stay but I didn't rightly know why. Now of you ask me what I know I can tell you I know considerable."

"Out in New Mexico they's a ranch in the fork of Big and Little creek that's the greenest patch in the shadow of White Mountain. It's mine and it's got a three-room shack on it that could grow if need was. I know a girl that's been holdin' a four-bush against an orchid's weak pair till she's just about sick of the game, but she's drawn and tilted on the last hand though she ain't had a chance to look at her cards yet."

"For some while the's been a purple light laughin' over Big and Little creek an' I reckon I'll be able to see it plain'er an' plain'er the nigher I get to it an' if the girl will help me I reckon that in a small way we'll soon be growin' a purple city that will feed from you hand. If ever you feel the need of some bran' new air, Mr. Lansing, you come out to Big and Little. There won't be much besides air but it'll be fresh made on White Mountain an' you can smell it comin' down through the pines an' see it playin' with the leaves on the cottonwoods an' plowin' through the tops of the sorghum."

They sat for some time in silence then Gerry said, "I've been calling you 'Kemp' since I first saw you but you still hang on to the 'mister' when you talk to me. Cut it out, Kemp."

Kemp flushed slightly. "Some things is fittin' an' some ain't," he said, "an' we can't always rightly say why. Some folks is governed by conscience but most by pride. Its goin' to be 'Kemp' and 'Mister Lansing' to the end of the chapter, Mr. Lansing, an' no friendship lost either. Shake."

They shook hands solemnly, mounted and started back to Red Hill. Gerry had found the key to Kemp's strength. It was the key of strength. Kemp belonged on the Hill, and with the people of true blood anywhere, not only because he was himself always but because he defended what he could hold and no more. He was a definition for independence.

Hours passed before the moon popped into the sky, hurrying just at first as though she knew she were forty minutes late again. One by one lights went out. Other lights gleamed from upper windows; then they, in turn, went out. Red Hill had gone to bed.

From Maple house, the Firs, and far down the road, from Elm house warm lights flashed out and settled down into a steady glow. A burst of young voices swept into the night and died away, followed into the silence by soft laughter. From The Firs came the last angry wall of the fat young girl, choked off in midlaugh by the soft hand of sleep. Then the scurrying of many feet along the dusty road, silence, and last of all, the trailing whistle of a boy signaling good-night—sound saying good-by to a happy day.

POLITICAL ANNOUNCEMENT

WRITTEN AND PUBLICATION AUTHORIZED BY W. P. LANGDON AND TO BE PAID FOR BY HIM AT THE RATE OF 40c PER INCH.

The Waterworks Is But a Part of the Coun- cilman's Duties

SO much has been said about the waterworks that many people have become confused regarding the real and actual duties of the councilman to be elected at the coming election.

This agitation about the waterworks has been a clever talking point, but somewhat of a subterfuge nevertheless. You are going to the primaries tomorrow not to indicate your choice of men to run the business end of the waterworks alone. That department is but one of the many duties, and the man who is elected must have other requirements as well. For, as a matter of fact, it is not certain that the councilman elected at this election will have charge of the waterworks. After an election the mayor and the two councilmen meet and apportion the work and duties of each one.

The city finance, the lighting system, the police, the streets and the sewers are other duties, in fact there is not a single business interest of the city of Janesville which would not come under the attention of the newly elected councilman. For while each councilman has his own particular departments, yet he is called in consultation with other department heads.

Who is better fitted for such a responsible position than the modern man of today who has been especially trained to cope with such matters of business as will come before the newly elected councilman? A man full of ambition and energy who will step into the work, roll up his sleeves and hustle. A man who is making and paying for his campaign for election, who is not backed by nor never has been associated with public service corporations; who is not soliciting the office on a sympathy basis. A man willing to stand on his own merits and be judged for what he is.

I Come Before You On This Eve Of The Primaries Asking You To Consider The Above

I am qualified for the office and furthermore if elected I will earn or strive my utmost to earn, every cent that the city pays me for my services.

Because of my training it will not be necessary to add the expense of extra office force at rush times. A councilman is elected and employed to work himself and fulfill the duties required by him, not to shoulder them onto others. Why should efficient but small salaried clerks be expected to do the work which the public believes is being done by their officer. Do you want your office occupied by a figurehead, placed in office through the influence of private and corporate interests?

A city is like any business firm. It must grow and expand. Janesville needs new, fresh, virile blood. I believe the public is interested in a settlement of various questions which have come before the present administration. For instance a more equal and fair adjustment of the dog licenses. You will have the opportunity of expressing your desire and wishes along this line at the primaries tomorrow.

Look into the future when you go to the polls tomorrow, for it is for the welfare of the future that this election is being held. Vote for a better Janesville.
